

Compression Planning Facilitation

Compression Planning is a structured technique for facilitating a group meeting. It takes a wide range of ideas and solutions and converts them into an action plan for implementation. Here's how it works:

1. Designing/Developing Master Plan: Findley Davies meets with key project leads to develop the Compression Planning session content.

2. Exploring: Participants brainstorm about objectives, solutions and tasks. The ideas are noted on index cards and posted on storyboards.

3. Focusing: Participants prioritize ideas and suggestions by placing dots on the index cards.

4. Conceptualizing: After the dots are counted, ideas and suggestions are prioritized. The group may explore the best ideas further before reaching consensus about what needs action.

5. Action Planning: Action steps are created to make sure everyone understands the tasks that need to be completed. The group agrees to a timeline and assigns responsibilities.

6. Reporting: Findley Davies delivers a report that summarizes the Compression Planning session including the action steps. Once the client approves the report, the document can be used to track implementation of the action plan.
